Dear Christie

I understand your agency is reviewing the Form 990 requirement as it pertains to religious organizations. I believe it is an unfair burden on tax payers and legitimate nonprofit organizations to give churches and religious groups free rein in this area.

Where is the accountability? How do we (you) know if said organization is working as a real nonprofit (to the benefit of society) or just taking in money to benefit its leaders?

Weather it's a mega church with million dollar jets and outlandish buildings, or the neighborhood pastor are taking the basket collection home, I believe the IRS should treat all those claiming to be nonprofits the same.

Sincerely
