

I support the survey process and believe that it needs to be done frequently, but have a concern over the methodology.

The survey calls for 400 surveys per state. This will not generate a valid set of information because some states only have 40,000 boats and others have 700,000 boats. Unless they weight the value of the responses based on the number of boats in the particular state, this survey will not be useful as the data will be invalid.
