The Union Pacific Railroad is refusing to pay wages that it agreed to with the last union contract, and counting on the Persuader Rule being rescinded to force its workers to violate all of its agreements with the unions. Further, it wants to force all labor employees to no more than 2 weeks vacation regardless of how many years of employment they have with the company.

Unions are the vehicle that created - and continue to support - a strong middle class in the USA. The right to organize labor when companies are taking advantage of their workers is critical to maintaining that support. Often it is the only effective way to counter the "unions" of corporations that band together and collectively hinder the rights of their workers.

Working people deserve to know who is trying to block their freedom from joining together and forming a union on the job. Corporations spend big money on shadowy, outside firms that use fear tactics to intimidate and discourage people from coming together to make a better life on the job. I support a strong and robust persuader rule. Do not eliminate the persuader rule. I have worked in positions where union membership is not available. I will never do this again. An individual, alone, has absolutely no negotiating power for wages, health insurance or other working conditions. If companies are not transparent in these communications, many individuals could make misguided decisions. Employer/employee relationships DO NOT include a fiduciary clause. Businesses are by nature striving for the greatest profit. The welfare of employees cannot be left in their hands only. Employees do not have the resources to hire high powered law firms to represent their interests except when part of an organized labor organization. The right to freely meet and to organize must be protected! Workers have given their lives to secure these rights. Am now retired and am grateful to have been represented by union membership for the last 28 years.

Dear Mr. Secretary,

I am asking that you do not rescind the persuader rule which gives the worker the fair opportunity to consider being represented by a union. I believe in having an opportunity to vote for or against union representation, but without the persuader rule, the corporations will continue to make all the money and walk all over the average middle class worker. Once again big money wins. Please give all of us a chance to make our own decision to a brighter future.

Thanks you, sir. Dana Vargo

At a time when wages for American workers are not keeping up it is a bad idea to help companies fight against unions without the workers being aware of the lengths employers will go and the facts about who is trying to influence them. Dear Mr. Acosta,

Americans have the right to form a union at work. I strongly support a robust and strong persuader rule. There should be a more level playing field when it comes to workers coming together to form a union. Corporations that spend big money on anti-union tactics shouldn't be allowed to work in the shadows. Working people deserve to know who is trying to block their freedom from joining together and forming a union on the job. Do not eliminate the persuader rule.

Take the time to be a voice for the working people of America. Do the research and do what's right for hard working Americans.

Sincerely

Susanne Murphy

Working people deserve to know who is trying to block their freedom from joining together and forming a union on the job. Corporations spend big money on shadowy, outside firms that use fear tactics to intimidate and discourage people from coming together to make a better life on the job. I support a strong and robust persuader rule. Do not eliminate the persuader rule.

I have long believed that Corporations and Labor Unions should have to play by the same rules, sadly our government has a history of imposing a different set of standards for Labor Unions to abide by.

Unlike Unions, Corporations spend big money to earn clients and business. Likewise, their spending on anti-union efforts will only escalate if the Persuader Rule is rescinded.
