For nearly 12 years in the education system, those with disabilities have not been given enough resources or advocates to protect them. There are only 2 groups that are active and even then the discrimination is still continuing in the education of these children. In order to protect them they too need to be aware of their rights. As well as the staff of the school. Educating is the best support you could do for these kids. People need to be taught how to not discriminate and be able to handle the differences. As well as someone needs to actively audit and seek out information from parents and students to know who needs support that just might not realize
