History has shown that the implementation of tariffs has singularly failed. Donald Trump would have you believe that this tariff on wines imported from France and Europe will bring about a reversal of France's subsidies to Airbus industries. Like his inability to preside over the US, his ignorance about economics and the effects this ignorance has on our economy, know no bounds. Surely you, as the Office of Trade Representatives, appreciate that this tariff is paid, not by French citizens, but by hard-working Americans who simply want to enjoy a glass of European wine at a sensible, competitive, price? It is absurd to think that anyone else will pay for the President's ignorance. Our industry, more than most, has been affected by the Corona Virus and this government's lies and distortions of truth. Maybe a tariff on Clorox would be more helpful.
