I find that it makes no sense to impose tariffs on French farmers, cheese makers and winemakers over a dispute about airplanes. This is really hurting these people and honestly, I like the old world wines of Italy, Spain and France as well as the cheeses of these countries over domestic products. I drink probably 90% European wines and eat probably 50% European cheese and these tariffs are making these products too expensive.

Also, these folks are being severely hit by the current COVID crisis. I ask that you find more appropriate ways to punish the EU for Airbus transgressions.

Thank you for listening! Roland
