I have some reservations in relation to the changes proposed for Form 641. As a former client and former SBDC Advisory Board member I can understand the desire and even need to gather more information for a number of reasons. However, other than the fact that the services from the SBDC are free, the anonymity is extremely important. I would at least like the language on the form to be clearer. The client needs to clearly understand that the SBDC's services are not contingent participating in the surveys. There should also be language assuring the client that their personal information will not be shared with the SBA. There are too many instances of personal information somehow getting shared even by the government, and one should be able to participate in a survey without wondering about the repercussions.
