Good Morning! I have an idea which would greatly relieve the current unhappiness with ordering limited edition coins that sell out in minutes, and due to computer problems, many people (including myself on several occasions) are not even able to log on. Why not have a lottery for customers, similar to what many states do with hunting licenses for elk or other popular but limited big game animals. Everyone can apply, and the winners are notified and can then order at their leisure, thus avoiding unfairness and angst. Thank you.
