As a College administrator I would like to ask the DoE to consider not implementing these changes. While the HEERF funds have been extremely helpful to colleges and universities, they have also created a large strain on college/university personnel to manage the grants associated with these funds. On top of that we are dealing with high turnover and employee vacancies like most other industries. The added burden of the additional reporting will have further negative impacts of colleges/universities ability to manage these grants along with trying to conduct "normal" business of providing high-quality education.
