General Comment

The suggestion that it only takes an hour is the most ludicrous thing I've ever read on the internet, which is saying a lot. Having helped friends with this paperwork, I know it takes far longer, often depending on the individual's health condition and education level. The minimum amount of time to gather all the information needed and complete the paperwork, in my experience, is six hours, and that was with a person with a secure and stable housing history, who had decent nutritional levels, no cognitive impairments, and a graduate-level education.
