Hi Farley,

I'm commenting on the topic of keeping the OCA. I'm not sure if I truly understand it's use and scope, but I use Onet database regularly as a career coach and to me it is important to have up-to-date occupations in the system, including adding new ones that come along that currently do not have a classification. If this system helps with that effort, I strongly support keeping it in use. Reading through the additional material, it sounds like it is hard to hear back from employers to get new information, so I hope there is a sustainable practice to add new jobs that come along, as technology is often changing and new jobs keep appearing.

Thanks,
Jen
