General Comment

60 minutes is way to low of an estimate of the time it takes to complete the disability review forms. I assist folks with intellectual disabilities and every person I help needs assistance to complete the form, so really the time estimate needs to be doubled as it takes at least 2 people's time. In addition, often a helper will not know all of the specific medical information, so additional time is needed to contact doctors to get the information needed - again both the time of the person filling out the form and the doctor providing the information.
