General Comment

I have had to fill out the CDR form for my 22 year old disabled son. Between gathering the necessary documentation and trying to figure out how to answer many of the vague questions for my son who is unable to read or write well enough to do it on his own, it takes at least 3 hours, not to mention the unnecessary stress that it causes worrying about potentially answering something incorrectly and having to start the whole process all over again. Unfortunately, my son's intellectual disability isn't ever going away.
