

Author Full Name : Arch StantonReceived Date : 08/26/2022 09:02 AMComments Received :

My only comments at this time are actually in the form of questions: Why should you be collecting such information at all? What does this information have to do student/parent financial need? When...seriously...when, are we all going to stop insisting on viewing, categorizing, and grouping human beings by generally superficial and ultimately unimportant (in the grand scheme of life) characteristics?

Again, what does this information have to do with financial aid, with the education pathway of a human being? I see having all of this information gathered and available leading only, in the end, to further serve to fuel divisiveness, contempt, resentment, and unfair, differential treatment. This needs to stop.

I close with the question that I opened with: Why should you (and we as a society generally) be collecting such information at all?