Amnesty Registration of Pistol Brace Weapons' is a completely unconstitutional overreach that seeks to discriminate against US citizens who are disabled or economically disadvantaged, as well as create a national firearms registry that can easily be abused through a tyrannical administration. Not only that, but its premise has nothing to do with stopping legitimate homicide and crime in the United States.

Pistol braces are essential for the disabled citizens of our nation. Pistol braces were created for the sole discretion of ensuring that those with disabilities can continue to exercise their Constitutional rights, despite being unable to steady and handle a normal firearm configuration. If integrated, this forced registration would require that these disabled Americans pay 3200 and wait months for the process of a Form 1 to be fully conducted, until they are able to use the equipment that is essential for them to exercise their Second Amendment rights.

A Form 1 document and registration process also requires a plethora of personal information that can be used for an unconstitutional gun registry. Some of that information includes: Name Social Security Number Address Phone Number Email Credit Card Number Fingerprints Weapon Make Weapon Model Weapon Serial Number

A national gun registry is a complete disregard for the entire premise of the Second Amendment to the Constitution, of which is to ensure that a government would not have the ability to restrict the rights of the American people through tyranny or other means. The ATF Form 1 requirements of this ruling would enable characteristics of a national gun registry. The collection and storage of this information is neglectful of this right, as well as is incompetent due to the ability for administrations domestic and abroad to steal the recorded information of Americans and use it against them. The ability for the federal government to take, record, and store this information enables anyone who manages to get their hands on the information to confiscate firearms from anyone they see fit, and it is easy to draw comparisons to nations like Germany in the 1930s of whom historically abused registries to disarm groups they deemed inferior.

Most modern pistol braces are also created with specifications of compatibility with buffer tubes that are commonplace on dozens if not hundreds of firearm models and designs, and requiring registrants to provide their specific firearm make, model, and serial number would be completely arbitrary due to this functional ability of modern pistol braces. I fail to see how this ruling could curb any sort of criminal activity.

All in all, the proposed requirements of pistol brace registration are completely and utterly pointless, and serve to establish discrimination against the disabled and economically disadvantaged for purposes I can't even fathom or describe. This administration is simply increasing political tension between the people of the United States, and rulings like this that are discriminatory and restrictive of the natural rights of Americans only serve to continue that tension until it hits a breaking point. I highly recommend and request that these requirements are left unconsidered.
