

Author Full Name : Mariah McRoberts

Received Date : 09/09/2022 08:09 PM

Comments Received :

Even considering this goes against the constitution as it is an act against the rights of the people of the United States. Not only is this taking away constitutional rights though, it is also actively opening the door to harm. Requiring public record would give identity thieves immediate access and open the door to home invasions (as criminals would then know who does not have protection).

At the end of the day though, this product is an attachment for disabled citizens and veterans to be able to protect themselves.

This is unconstitutional and needs to not go into place.

You are not to make laws, but to interpret them.