Considering that being vaccinated only means you had the first 2 initial shots, which would be even more useless at this point than initially, no, it makes NO SENSE AT ALL to require anyone to be vaccinated in order to travel to the US in a plane. I am not vaccinated but I can come back home just because I have a U.S. passport but my wife, who also is unvaccinated, cannot enter? That's completely illogical and not based on any science. It's idiotic. Drop the restrictions and let things go back to normal. The way these bodies of government are handling things is a joke. The CDC is bogus, Fauci is a criminal, and the Biden administration is clearly incompetent.
