Can we please get clear rules and regulations for standardized labeling for products that claim they're gluten-free, vegan, and free from the major allergens. Companies are allowed to claim they're free from allergens however, if you read their "may contain" statements their facility/plant has the potential for cross-contact contamination.

To promote all consumers to read labels, and label clarity, I would like to propose to remove all of the gluten-free, vegan, etc. labels. Instead I hope that we can focus on global labeling and simplifying the nutrition facts on the back of the package.
