General Comment

I think this is funny that you are calling this part of the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 when you are causing all kinds of extra paperwork to be needed. Instead of doing a consolidated data grab, you are looking through thousands and thousands of lines of data depending on your company. This will in no shape or form improve timeliness or efficiency for you all in obtaining this data. The burden that you are placing on companies to collect and input this to you is obscene. There is no way that this will only add minutes to the current process. I see it adding hours. What used to take 5 minutes could take us 1/2 day. Now I am needing IT to help handle this weekly instead of being able to do myself. This is the worst idea you have had in a while.
