This comment is in response to the proposed change for BOI reporting drop-down options in lieu of using "unknown checkboxes." Please provide more guidance on the implications and penalties for filers who select a drop-down option, but who filings will still be considered incomplete and non-compliant filings, and who may never receive the information required to finalize the filing. This "forever in limbo" filing status could adversely affect a company's ability to do business and close transactions in the event that BOI compliance became part of due diligence/closing requirements for transactions.

Please consider allowing outdated/expired or "last available" information for BO's to be reported and uploaded, such as a last known address, expired DL, or other expired government ID.

Please also consider drop-down options for Estate reporting in the event of the death of a beneficial owner.
