General Comment

Hello, as an American who lives abroad full time, I highly resent the FBAR because it adds a lot of extra stress. Americans abroad are subject to the tax system of the country they live in and it's unusual that the US asks its citizens abroad to report this information. FBAR only makes sense for residents of the US, but not for Americans abroad who are residents of other countries. Please adjust it to not include Americans abroad who are bona fide residents of other countries.
