

Author Full Name : AnonymousReceived Date : 04/11/2024 07:57 AMComments Received :

The FBAR is a yearly annoyance for Expats who already need to deal with filing taxes in two countries, just because of American citizenship, regardless of where their money is made. Additionally, foreign banks are already hesitant to take US citizens as customers due to the intense reporting requirements associated with our citizenship. Why is this burden also being passed on to US citizens? Why is double reporting needed?