t is extremely challenging to keep track of all the requirements and regulations, especially when it comes to financial matters. For individuals with low income, who already struggle with expenses, long working hours, and low-paying jobs, it becomes even more difficult. They simply do not have the time or resources to constantly monitor and manage all these complex numbers. Additionally, the cost of professional assistance to handle these matters is often unaffordable for them. While it may seem insignificant to some, even a $100 expense on a total funds of $10,000 is a significant burden. This financial strain makes it increasingly difficult for individuals to save enough money for important goals like owning a home, as opportunities diminish over time.
