I am an American living in Canada with my Canadian husband. We have been married for 40 years. We have always lived within our mean. We have sacrificed to save for our retirement.

I have filed my 1040 and FBARs annually for the last 40 years. A few years ago it got too much for me so I hired an accountant. This is a considerable expense for me. My investment accounts are the result of hard work. Filing FBARs, in my opinion, has no purpose. It also duplicates what is already in my regular return. Just an intrusive waste of time! Thank you.
