As a resident of Canada, I agree with the detailed comments provided by Democrats Abroad. In my situation, I have filed this information for many years. The online process is relatively straightforward (especially compared to the hand-entered, mailed versions) but it still takes many hours to ensure records and entries are correct. Furthermore, the information requested greatly overlaps with information requested on the 1040 tax return form 8938; but the forms differ enough to cause confusion. I would like to see the FBAR and 8938 simplified and made more consistent with each other.
