I think this whole gender identification thing is sensationalism likened to the flat earth beliefs that has very little to do with reality. There are two (2) genders, male and female, whether you believe in God or not. I realize we have likes and dislikes, tendencies, preferences, and the likes but in reality it is what it is and we can accept it or fight it or have surgeries and take medication but in the end you are a messed up version of what you were to begin with. Live the life you have and make the best of it instead of living in a constant state of turmoil! As to whether you conduct a survey, my ole Pappy said, "the more you stir it the worse it smells!"
