I would like to comment as a member of the general public who could potentially be asked to fill out this form. I feel it is important for people like myself that you include an asexual option as a category for sexual orientation. Many people's assumption about sexual orientation has been that everyone must be sexually attracted to some people either of the opposite sex/gender (heterosexual), the same sex/gender (homosexual) or both sexes and genders (bisexual). This overlooks many people like myself who are not sexually attracted to people of the same sex/gender nor to people of the opposite sex/gender. We should not be pushed in to identifying with a sexuality that does not adequately represent us simply because the other options are shown while asexuality is left off.
