Please continue to collect data on college and university libraries! As a recent graduate who worked in my campus library for three years, I can attest that 1. University libraries are not prioritized highly enough in the university budgets, and 2. Having a well-staffed library with the resources I needed was crucial to my success as a student. I firmly believe that I would not have graduated without help from my campus librarians, at least not on time. To disregard the data surrounding these pillars of academic success is to ignore the supports that students, staff, and faculty need to keep the library and campus running smoothly. That's how we get overworked librarians, research trapped behind paywalls, and preservation suites full of mold. Please stand up for students and continue to learn about the libraries that support them.
