I oppose the plan to eliminate the Academic Libraries survey. I am an advocate with the American Library Association, a public library friends group board member and former patron of several university libraries around Washington, DC. I benefitted greatly from having access to university libraries long after my undergraduate days.

The unique longitudinal data of the Academic Libraries survey provides crucial information about changes and trends in college and university libraries. Universities and colleges cannot be great without great libraries. This data helps them be the best they can be for the most people.
