I am writing to oppose the plan to eliminate the Academic Libraries survey. Simply put, this is a bad idea. I work at a university library. The loss of access to useful data about our peers and other academic libraries will negatively impact our ability to perform our work related to planning and assessment. The unique longitudinal data of the Academic Libraries survey provides crucial information about changes and trends in college and university libraries. I join with my colleagues in requesting decision makers to reconsider this proposed change to the IPEDS.
