The Academic Library Survey is vital to secondary educational institutions. Without this survey, it is difficult for libraries to justify their role to administration and other stakeholders. As a library system that has used the survey data for the past 30 years, the data gathered has provided crucial information to improve the learning outcomes for institution I serve. It would be a misstep to discard such an important tool for academic libraries and I would like to advocate for its continued use. I appreciate the opportunity to provide feedback.
