The Academic Library Survey is vital to college and university libraries. It allows libraries to compare themselves through basic operational statistics to other similar and aspirational libraries. It is the only free service available to libraries. Even the Association of College and Research Libraries, a division of the American Library Association, which basis some of its statistical information on what is collected by ALS changes for their information. Many libraries do not have the additional funds to buy this type of information. Please keep ALS as part of the survey and providing this important information to all academic libraries.
