

Author Full Name : Kathy HooperReceived Date : 06/14/2024 09:17 AMComments Received :

Academic libraries are at the heart of higher education. Students need access to many types of information that are not easily obtained by electronic searches. In addition to college students, researchers often make use of collections which may be unique in their focus. Eliminating this survey would diminish the relevance of libraries in the eyes of policy makers. Libraries have led the way in use of electronic data, and should not be excluded in this way.