I would urge the Department of Education to grant a further delay in the implementation of Gainful Employment (GE) reporting requirements. While the October 1st deadline extension was appreciated, financial aid offices are still struggling to address issues arising from the 2024-25 FAFSA rollout. The recent announcement of a limited ISIR corrections process only adds to their workload. Completing accurate GE reports requires significant time and resources, which are currently stretched thin. A delay until July 2025 would mirror the 2015 implementation timeline, allowing for a more focused effort and smoother transition. This extra time would benefit both institutions and students.
