I am writing to express my opposition to ending the Academic Libraries survey. I am a librarian at an academic health sciences center and I am extremely concerned about how ending the survey could negatively impact academic libraries. Academia is going through a lot of changes right now, many of which result from the advent of new artificial intelligence tools, and it seems extremely shortsighted to stop collecting this data at this critical moment. It is extremely important to be able to observe and measure the impact of these potentially very disruptive changes on academic libraries. Please do not discontinue the survey, it is needed now more than ever.
