Passports exist to identify the holder, the proposed changes in how gender and sex markers will be applied does not meaningfully help with this function. The definitions of sex laid out in EO14020 are at odds with medical institutions and are clearly based in political ideology, not science, and are not in the best interest of the American people. These changes will result in increased harassment of not just transgender people, but also of intersex people who do not neatly fit into one of the two categories and those who may not fit stereotypical definitions of their gender.
