

Author Full Name : Jason HardyReceived Date : 02/19/2025 11:37 PMComments Received :

The person who best knows their identity is the person themselves. The government should not be in the business of telling people what their identity is, especially when their attempted explanations are based on non-scientific ideas that XX and XY are the only chromosomal combinations that exist. Rather than enforcing ideology, the passport process should be about recognizing who people are, including relying on them to declare their gender.