This is an enormous waste of taxpayer money to change forms in a way that promotes discrimination and induces confusion in the public as well as workers. We will spend money reviewing all of the comments for these unnecessary changes, we will spend money implementing these unnecessary changes, we will spend money in court attempting to defend these unnecessary and unconstitutional changes, and we will spend money having to change everything back when it is recognized that these changes are not being made to improve the system or improve anything for Americans, but to follow a particular political agenda. We are sick of having things swing back and forth constantly when we could easily implement a system that allows identification of all citizens, and that doesn't even need to have these kind of details on the form.

There are many people that fall outside of the binary "reasoning" given as the basis for making this change, and we will now be putting those people outside of a necessary system, and a system that they are legally allowed to be part of. This discriminates against trans people, this directly ignores the existence of all intersex people, this will cause confusion for our customs agents and border folk, and we already have plenty of ways to identify individuals without resorting to "what does this random sex marker says". No one is even looking at that.
