

Author Full Name : AnonymousReceived Date : 02/20/2025 01:55 AMComments Received :

The federal government has no constitutional rights to force any citizen into any category of identifications and to do so would create systematic errors and easily avoidable mistakes and errors that would cost unnecessary funds to later then fix when simply acknowledging and allowing applicant's preference of identification would greatly ease and accelerate applicational procedures.

To put it simply, allowing people to identify as male/female/trans/or non binary as they see fit would cause less clerical issues and allow procedural ease for applicants.