Recently I applied to change my name on my passport, to reflect my court order name change. I hope that it will be processed properly. If it does not, it leaves a discrepancy between my identifying documents, and I believe that this is a problem. If my passport cannot be corrected, what will happen? Am I going to have to revert my name change, which I did legally, and with all respect to the law? I do not believe the proposed changes will be helpful, but rather troublesome and put multiple types of people in difficult positions regarding documentation. Please do not go through with the proposed changes.
