

Author Full Name : Anonymous

Received Date : 02/20/2025 12:22 AM

Comments Received :

I find it very simple — this is about respect. If people want to change what is on their passport, we should let them. It's about respect. Passports are meant to represent your identity, something that other people can identify you with. If you disagree with your own identity on the passport, it tosses this to the wind.

I find there to be no need to change the system we had before these executive orders. This is a change that does not need to be made. It harms those it claims to target more than it benefits those it claims to aid.

I hope you understand, and that you have a blessed day.