

Author Full Name : Marc MooreReceived Date : 02/20/2025 05:23 AMComments Received :

Disallowing changes for gender markers or name corrections to correspond with changed names frankly does nothing to make us safer or have accurate information and in some cases could contribute to people being targeted entering other countries where LGBTQ people are at higher risk. The name part seems like an obvious issue- the point is to have accurate identification that can be matched to the person. If you don't allow the accurate name that matches their identity, then the point of the identification has failed.