In consideration of current and best scientific standards, as well as general courtesy and kindness, the notion of reverting passports to a non-scientific, non-factual, and ultimately a petty version of meanness seems ridiculous. Inclusiveness in these documents ensures an America that embody the ideas of Jeffersonian Democracy as well as supports actual peer-reviewed science. This proposed change does little except target a minority community, one of the smallest in America but allowing that community to be included in the process strengthens the country and shows that our ideals and our documents are factual and ultimately, kind.
