Hello,

This comment is regarding the recent rule change for the gender marker on passports. I changed the gender marker on my passport in 2018, and I currently live outside the US. Now that the rules have changed, I will never again be able to get the same passport I have now. If my passport is ever stolen, lost, or sent through the washing machine (all common occurrences), I will have no recourse and no way to get my passport reprinted the same way. Carrying my passport in places with pickpocketing gives me anxiety in a way that I never had before.
