Using biological sex for a passport does not make sense. When an individual stands before a the intake authority of a country, they will scrutinize a discrepancy based on what they see. This will cause undo harm for Americans who present as the opposite sex. Alternatively, the intake authority will no longer value gender or not be able to use gender marked on a passport as probable cause for investigation. Please consider this when making changes, for both the bodily safety of Americans and for the safety of our passengers around the world.
