I am opposed to requiring passports issued to transgender people to reflect their gender assigned at birth. Changing the forms and retraining staff is an unnecessary expense that the taxpayers do not need. Citizens who have legally changed their gender should be able to renew a passport so all of their legal documents match. Citizens of the United States all have the same right to have the documentation required to travel safely outside the United States. The federal government should not be spending taxpayer money on the lawsuits that will be brought should this change go into effect.
