If I'm to understand this form update, the Department of State is requesting an additional $48,000,000 of taxpayer funds beyond its previous year's funding for something that has, up to now, been an inconsequential blip on the federal radar? The semantic pedantry at play here of requiring a document to list an individual's sex at birth instead of their gender makes no tangible improvements to the Department's capacity to perform its functions. You are asking me, the taxpayer, to fund your frivolous decision to apply my hard-earned money towards the application of an Executive Order that does not result in any tangible improvements to the function of your office? The very same Executive Order which has already found itself under legal fire from multiple institutions & Civil Rights organizations. $48,000,000 - with no merit to support this request.

If this is how incompetent the State Department is with their funding we truly have more significant concerns as a nation.

This comment opposes the use of taxpayer money to enact the document changes requested from the Department of State.
