I am writing to you with deep concern regarding your organization's consideration of a ban on issuing passports to transgender individuals. I respectfully urge you to reconsider this decision, as it not only stands in opposition to constitutional rights, but also violates the basic principles of equality, dignity, and human rights.

Every person, regardless of gender identity, deserves to have their identity recognized and respected. Denying transgender people access to passports based on their gender identity undermines the rights and freedoms guaranteed by the Constitution, particularly the right to equal protection under the law. The proposed ban would directly impact the ability of trans people to move freely, access essential services, and engage in international travel—basic rights that should be protected for all citizens.

The United States has made significant strides toward ensuring the rights of transgender people, particularly in areas such as identification, healthcare, and legal recognition. A passport is not just a travel document; it is a symbol of recognition and a tool that affirms one's identity. By denying this right, your organization would be perpetuating harmful discrimination that can further marginalize an already vulnerable community.

We are in a time when society is evolving, and understanding of gender is becoming more inclusive. Transgender individuals, like everyone else, should have the ability to travel without fear of discrimination or misrepresentation. The ability to have a passport that accurately reflects one's gender identity is an essential part of ensuring that trans people are treated with the respect and dignity they deserve.

Please reconsider the implementation of this ban. It is imperative that all citizens, regardless of gender identity, have access to the same rights and opportunities. I urge you to embrace inclusivity and equality in your decision-making process and to stand against actions that could harm an already marginalized group.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I hope you will act to protect the rights of all people, including transgender individuals, and work toward a more inclusive, just, and constitutional society.
