

Author Full Name : Samara BarberReceived Date : 02/20/2025 05:27 PMComments Received :

I am a 33 year old transgender woman, and I can tell you firsthand that this legislation does nothing but give not only me but the several other agencies which currently have my information a headache on a regular basis. It doesn't protect anything, much less its sanctity.

Not to mention the fact that there is no constitutional manner in which to suss up a person's medical records or perform an exam on site to truly uphold this legislation without it actively discriminating against trans women who simply don't "pass" as cisgender females by appearance. If someone passes, they obviously wouldn't be questioned.

This piece of legislation does not protect nor build anything, it simply attempts - poorly - to tear down an already marginalized group's legal means of representing themselves internationally.