This is recklessness in action. This is an unconstitutional change. Denying people who have already medically transitioned the ability to have all of their documents match when they travel is reckless, dangerous and unconstitutional. I have a court order and all of documents say male. Denying me a passport that also says male puts me in harms way and makes it impossible and unsafe for me to travel. Essentially nullifying even having a passport. My drivers license, birth certificate and all other documents say male so the only thing this does is confuse customs and other countries and make it super complicated to try to travel abroad. I'm not going to reverse anything and I have already medically transitioned with no regrets. This is wrong and if something happens to me you are liable and at fault for knowingly violating my rights as a trans American and putting me in harms way.
